

harbapaz Runic: ᚱᚱᚱᚱᚱᚱᚱᚱ Pronunciation: /'xar.βa.θaz/noun · masculine · a-stem

Meanings

a Carpathian

Etymology

Though attested only in Old Norse compound names, there are indications that the word must be old, from *karpátos. It must have been borrowed from Latin Carpatēs or a close relative prior to the occurrence of Grimm's law, and thus predates the split of the Germanic languages. Ultimately from the same source as the Latin, whether pre-Germanic or another language.

Declension

Case	Singular	Plural
Nom.	harbapaz	harbapōz, harbapōs
Acc.	harbapa	harbapanz
Gen.	harbapas, harbapis	harbapō
Dat.	harbapai	harbapamaz
Inst.	harbapō	harbapamiz
Voc.	harbap	harbapōz, harbapōs

Descendants

*harfaðr (Old Norse)

View on Wiktionary