Etymology

From Proto-Indo-European mak-* (‘small bag, bellows, belly’) (alternatively reconstructed as maks-*), which appears to be a European substrate term borrowed into multiple Indo-European branches. Compare Lithuanian mākas (‘purse, wallet, scrotum’), Proto-Slavic mošъnъ* (‘small bag, purse’), Proto-Celtic makīnā* (‘bellows’) (whence Welsh megin (‘bellows’), Breton megin (‘bellows’)).
