Pronunciation: /'mun.θɑz/

noun · masculine · a-stem

Meanings

mouth

Etymology

From Proto-Indo-European m̥n̥-tó-s* ('mouth, jaw'), from men-* ('chin') + -tós*. Cognate with Latin mentum ('chin'), Welsh mant ('mandible, gums'), Hittite 𐎢𐎣𐎶𐎵𐎶𐎶𐎶 (me-e-ni-i /mēni-/) (me-e-ni-i /mēni-/, 'face, cheek'). More speculatively, possibly related to Proto-Indo-European stemn-* ('mouth, muzzle'), whence stamniō* ('voice, sound') (compare Ancient Greek στόμα (stóma) (stóma)), via earlier stment-, in which case resemblance to the suffix -m̥n̥ would be accidental. Compare also Ancient Greek μάσσομαι (másaomai) (másaomai, 'to chew, bite'), Latin mandō ('to chew'), though some details are disputed.
